The cell membrane, or plasma membrane, surrounds and protects the internal environment of a cell; however, this is not its only function. A cell membrane also determines what materials enter or leave the cell. This ensures that the cells will be able to get rid of wastes and take up important nutrients and gases.

Membranes are mosaics of structure and function. An animal cell (or other cell without a cell wall) immersed in an isotonic environment experiences no net movement of water across its plasma membrane. Water molecules move across the membrane but at the same rate in both directions. The volume of the cell is stable.

Integral proteins penetrate the hydrophobic interior of the lipid bilayer. Peripheral proteins are not embedded in the lipid bilayer at all; they are appendages loosely bound to the surface of the membrane, often to exposed parts of integral proteins. 8. Describe major functions of membrane proteins.
